Manager of the Gazette.

Senators Vance and Ransom are having a good deal of trouble with their re-shiner constituents because of the president's message. They think that this element will support Blaine, as against Cleveland, unless the latter takes back what he has said. Politics is just now making strange bedfellows.

The sugar trust has succeeded in lowering the price of raw material, while it has raised the price of the manufactured material. The first, it buys, the second, it sells. Congress ought to begin with this huge monopoly in its investigation of trust companies, and find how far the tariff is an aid to it.

The Colorado Springs board of trade ought to join in the petition of the Denver board of trade that the railroads should give excursion rates one day in the week to Colorado and return. From Chicago and St. Louis. The present emigration to California is due very largely to this rate. It is just as much for the advantage of the railroads to give it to this state as to California.

Among our articles for next Sunday will be one by Prof. F. H. Loud, on the weather during the month of January. The article on the early part of the month will contain much that is favorable, but the part of the article on the latter part of the month will be very interesting to our storm subscribers. While we are on a point to take the shady side of the street in walking down town, the Post signal service is willing that we two feet of snow, with the thermometer 40° below.

The [illegible] Tuesday, [illegible] legislature of the [illegible] disgraceful affair. The fault primarily lies with [illegible] for not giving the [illegible] positions in this city, the business of the postoffice is a half or more greater than it was in 1884, yet the department allows only one clerk to those who were allowed then. The charge that the poor service is due to new clerks is only an excuse to avoid the blame. In many cases the old clerks left for the simple reason that the increase of the work demanded that they should do the labor of two men, and they did not care to do the work without increased compensation. The west has been growing much faster than the postal facilities. If congress will appropriate sufficient money to run the offices properly, there will be no trouble about the matter.

The St Louis Globe-Democrat (high protection) has some interesting statistics on coal. From this article, it appears that the cost of mining coal in England is on an average one dollar and sixteen cents a ton. This is the lowest cost in the world. In the United States the average cost is one dollar and forty-six cents a ton. In some parts of this country the cost is much lower. For example, in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia the cost is only one dollar, while in Illinois it is only one dollar and two cents a ton. Our railroads are carrying coal for far less per ton a mile than the English roads. For that reason it is difficult to see of what use protection is to the miner. The mine owners are making a great hue and cry about continuing the protection to coal. If this is not continued the miners are told that they will be reduced to the level of the pauper laborers of England. Yet it is an established fact that coal is mined for less per ton in the great states of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois than in England. Certainly protection cannot be helping the laboring man, when the coal costs less per ton to mine. Protection can only be helping the mine owner. But if the mine owners can produce this coal on the Atlantic slope for less than the English miner can, he certainly does not need protection. In some of the far interior states, the expense of mining coal is greater, so that they average about thirty cents a ton more than in England. But there is a railroad difference in the cost of transportation from either Canada or England, so that the mine owner who is paying more to produce his coal than the English miner does not need this protection. We know well enough if the protection were taken off of coal, that no coal would be sold in Colorado that was produced outside of this country, nor would it affect the price of coal in the slightest degree. While soft coal sells in some states for [illegible] a ton to thirty cents a ton, including freight, there is no danger of any competition from coal in Missouri and Iowa, much less from abroad.

HEDGE WARFARE PHILOSOPHY.

How to Still Make Money—A Few Facts for Farmers.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Jan 26.—DEAR EDITER: Agin I take my pen in hand to ventilate the sayins and doins at the national capital, perticklerly them that is goin on in legislative setkles, whar the sayins is to the doins in the proportion of about fifty to one, and thereabouts. Et don't stir any one thing that make me dr pize a statesman, and question the gleaniness of a patriot, like this continuls overflowin of the debate by the sayins, and the contimpt-uous disposition of our national legislators to keep it up. Congress meets every day at noon, and jist about the time the chaplin has got his prar-ful-some-able and distinguished opprobrations, with a object in view, raises in his place and wants to adjurn. Then somebody else gets a bill started, and of a full dozen or so members takes a notion that it oughtn't to pass, though why they take that notion, the Lord only knos, and he won't tell, they git to filly-busterin, and somebody moves to adjurn about every fifteen minits, and if he don't git us adjurned, we lose more time than any one ort to count joy fer in money in a hundred years, if we had to take it out of our own pockets. I was figgerin the other day, and I'll be mighty nigh $5,000 a day, and I reckin the other expenses will fout up to about $3,000 for the same time, or about $8,000 a day. That looks big, but it aint, if the people air gittin value rec'ved, which they aint and never will, as long as men air on the floor that don't keer a hooter fer expenses and only want to git a ball through of ther own, or to keep some other feller from gittin one through of his own. I hare frequently saw a bill that a majority would vote fer, quickern three shakes of a lam's tale, filly-bustered to a lingerin deth by a few men that used the rules fer a lawful and fit ther opponents from behind it. And this thing has been goin on, too, fer years and yers, and it is gittin no better fast. Fer my part I de be only too willin to git all our work done and go home, even ef I didn't git to stay in Washington longern ninety days out of every yer. Ef it aint politick country fer a congressman to ern his $5,000 per annum in ninety days, instid of six or nine months, then I don't know politick economy from a hole in the ground, and want to retire from the business of legislating as a missionary of fair to middlin sensible people. There my sentiments, Mr. Editter, and ef you news-paper fellers will just [illegible] us reformers we'll either git the crop hoed to rites, ef not, we'll easily els'll take holt. Ime a gittin tired of bein a boys play around out of the doors of the House, and am a goin in fer reform or bust.

That's enough of that. Let her soak and see ef it swells up any bigger. Now fer another subject.

The Wool men the Shippin Ieog and the Tarbacker men has been foleein each other here lately in havin meetins. The wool growers were favorable to tariff, and the manufacturers was in favor of gettin their raw material as cheap as they [illegible]. We [illegible] wool in Waybackt, but we don't make it up, except fer home consumption, on a few western sheep ranches. I am, therfore, in favor of the tariff, but at the same time, I aint feelin it to any great thar is something about the [illegible] of the tariff that I am't quite equal to, as yet. Ef a few capitalists w[illegible] to short or big mill in Waybackt, employin about 1,000 hands with their families, that aint to [illegible] of a [illegible] my feelins on this important question. We statesmen has got to be allowed to feel in eleventh the ground we stand on.

As to the shippin, I aint heard so much. I did try once to git our rivers improved fer navigation from its bed [illegible] to the mouth and back again if necessary, but the appropriation didn't git thar, and I aint [illegible] much interested in shippin as I [illegible] have been. Lookin at it from a purely dry land point of view, I me [illegible] to think that ef thar was any money in buildin ships and runnin them Jay Gould and Vand'bilt and Huntington and them other blooted monopolists would be a-goin to do it and turnin out forty or fifty ships a day and plowin the mane with it in every direction whar thar was the shirtest chance of makin a cargo of fish and raisin a dividend.

On the [illegible] bill of fare, I want to [illegible] enough, so everybody can show their wants to, and we can git [illegible]

Fifty-five cent cigars for a nickle apiece and matches thrown in. Ef the tax [illegible] off to do it, take it off, but don't make it off of the manufacturers, is goin to [illegible] up prices, and rake in all the profit thar. I raise to let it be my [illegible] and git a fair price fer it, but I'me not in favor of legislatin that is goin to force me to sell it cheaper to the manufacturers, and give them a right cause to force me to buy it [illegible] from them with lickerish and gl[illegible] and tool[illegible] and shoe pegs and leather stripping mixed in it, at the same price I pay when thar's a tax on it. No sirree! And what Ime in favor of fer my self, Ime in favor of fer all my constituents and my energies and my influence is all goin that away, which moves me to say, Mr. Editter, that the diversified intrests of this grate and glorious republic of ours is havin a tendency to git statesmen, that looks to their individual, mutual alleviation and cross eyes.

Society is on the top wave yit, as it has been sence New Year's, and that won't be no let up to it fell Lent. Maudie and I are to giv me her moral support, but Ime gittin round on my own look and feel fair to middlin well. I was up to the White House t'other nite in the neighborhood, and that was more statesmen to spoke to, lade coles and more ladys in full dressed dress, than I hav ever saw in one congregation of society. It was a gay and brilliant site. Mr. Editter, and I felt proud to be a representitive of sixty million of people that could furnish such an array of gallantry and beauty as there air. I hav forty-five million more people and ninety-nine thousand left over to grow from, or more was needed. It's things like this that makes a patriot swell when he walks, and look down with scorn on the effete nations of Europe. I'm glad to git away from a few old musty cobwebby fambles that confides I'm to be respectable to save their lives if they hadent been born that way.

But Ime gittin too long in my remarks and must quit, am tell next time.

Hoping you air well, I am yours truly,
W. Q. WAGNER, M. C.

A COMING AMERICAN CARDINAL.

A Rumor That Archbishop Williams, of Boston, Is to Be the Man.

After the long agitation over American cardinal it would have been a great thing for the archbishop of Baltimore, were the friends of some time that all these reports that the eyes of his colleagues [illegible] Archbishop Williams, of Boston, and that Archbishop Gibbons was the second choice. While the Pope's appointment was pending Archbishop Williams wrote to the pope to prefer Bishop [illegible] as the wisest one in the United States, of which letter the pope said: "The archbishop must be a wise man. He writes to me not to make him a cardinal. I seldom get letters of the sort." Through Baltimore is the oldest see, Boston is by far the most important archbishopric in point of population in nearly all to the northern states, and the Irish immigration to New England in the last twenty years has been enormous. The secret influence of the appointment of the first cardinal contained but 130 secular priests, the rest belonging to religious orders; less that of Boston has 261 secular priests, besides seventy religious and seventy five theological students.

ARCHBISHOP WILLIAMS.

Archbishop Williams was born in Boston, of Irish parents, April 27, 1822. He graduated from the College of Montreal in 1841, and then spent a few years in studying theology in the great seminary of the Sulpicians in Paris, he was ordained there in 1845, returned to Boston and for ten years had charge of the Sunday school of the cathedral. In 1[illegible] was made rector of the cathedral; in 1857 vicar general of the diocese of Boston, and soon after coadjutor of Bishop Fitzpatrick. By a [illegible] of the Catholic church which permits the appointment of bishops "in partibus infidelium," who may reside in another country and yet be full bishops, Coadjutor Williams was consecrated titular bishop of Trigli, [illegible] with full episcopal powers and on the 11th of March, 1866 he was, by Archbishop McCloskey, consecrated in charge of the Boston see. In 1875 the archiepiscopal see of Boston was organized and Bishop Williams received the pallium. As archbishop he has been remarkably successful, and the church has prospered greatly under his guidance. He took an active part in the third plenary council of Baltimore, and visited Rome in 1887.

SENATOR WALTHALL.

He Has Just Been Re-elected by the State of Mississippi.

Edward C. Walthall, who was recently elected by the Democrats of Mississippi senator from the United States senate for the full term beginning March 4, 1889, was born at Richmond, Va., April 4, 1831. He was educated and studied law at Holly Springs, Miss., and admitted to the bar in Coffeeville, Miss., in 1852. He was elected district attorney of the Tenth judicial district of Mississippi in 1856, and re-elected in 1859. In the spring of 1861 he entered the Confederate service as lieutenant in the Fifteenth Mississippi volunteers, and was soon after elected lieutenant colonel. In the spring of 1862 he was made colonel of the Twenty-ninth Mississippi regiment, and in December, 1862, was promoted to be brigadier general, and in June, 1863, to be major general.

E. C. WALTHALL.

After the war Gen. Walthall practiced law at Coffeeville, afterward at Greenwood, Miss. He was a delegate to the National Democratic conventions in 1876, 1876, 1880 and 1884. In 1885 he was appointed to the United States senate to fill the vacancy caused when L. Q. C. Lamar was appointed secretary of the interior, and was re-elected by the legislature of that state to serve for the unexpired term.

On information, furnished by Sheriff Jackson, Henry Mueller and Minnie Belitz were arrested in Denver on Sunday on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Both of the accused parties have been in the employ of Dr. W. A. Bell, of Manitou, the former as brother and the latter as cook. Mueller recently went to New York and hired the woman as a cook agreeing to pay her fare to Colorado Springs if she should remain in Dr. Bell's employ for a year. She arrived at Manitou and remained with Dr. Bell for about ten days, but during the absence of himself and family left with Mueller for Denver. When the family returned numerous articles of value were found to be missing and a search was at once instituted for the guilty parties. They were brought at a hotel in Denver and a quantity of the stolen property was found in their rooms. They were brought to Manitou and were given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Caldwell on Tuesday. The boy was acquitted on the original charge but was at once re-arrested for grand larceny. The woman was held in $250 bail to appear at the next term of the district court.
